DESCRIPTION

Llanfoist Wood is of ancient origin, being classified as a Plantation on Ancient Woodland Site (PAWS). This is woodland where trees have been growing continuously since before 1600 AD. The woodland now represents an excellent opportunity for a would-be purchaser to acquire a compact commercial woodland with timber ready to extract.

The wood is located on an east facing slope and comprises predominantly conifers, specifically mature Norway spruce and western hemlock. Broadleaf species appear in the western half of the wood and include oak, ash and beech. The wood is situated on the edge of the old Monmouth and Brecon Canal and has the potential to be a fantastic amenity for a new owner.

The woodland has been thinned in the past and the trees display good form. A felling licence has been approved allowing for a clear fell of the conifers and a thinning of the broadleaves. The licence expires in April 2026. The felling licence requires that the felled area be replanted with 8.06 hectares of young trees comprising 50% Douglas fir, 25% oak, 20% sweet chestnut and 5% beech. If a new owner chose to allow the felling licence to expire NRW (Natural Resources Wales) may allow a new application to be made, perhaps adjusting the restocking species mix to better suit a new owner.

Soils within the woodland are exceptionally fertile being freely draining, slightly acid loamy soils and therefore favourable to tree growth.

Access into the wood is taken via the county road to a gateway just to the south of the wood and thence over a right of way leading to a large turning/stacking area.

The vendor advises the Local Planning Authority has confirmed the construction of additional tracks through the woodland can be carried out under the General Permitted Development Order.
