DESCRIPTION

Set within the magnificent Cairngorms National Park in the Scottish Highlands, Plot 2 at Baddengorm Wood forms part of an established wider forest complex. The woodland is predominantly composed of Scots pine, planted circa 1975, and has remained relatively undisturbed for many years.

Now approaching maturity, the trees have naturally thinned over time, creating an attractive, well-spaced stand. Light filters through the canopy, encouraging a rich understorey of blaeberry and heather and giving the woodland a distinctly natural character reminiscent of the native pinewoods for which the Scottish Highlands are renowned.

Situated at the far western extremity of the wider forest, Plot 2 enjoys a wonderfully peaceful and secluded setting. Its position offers a rare sense of privacy and tranquillity, providing an opportunity to escape the demands of everyday life and enjoy the woodland entirely at your own pace.

The wider Baddengorm forestry complex is understood to support the elusive capercaillie, one of Scotland's most iconic woodland birds. For those with an interest in conservation and wildlife, ownership may provide an opportunity to support local efforts to protect and encourage this important species as it seeks to re-establish itself in parts of Scotland.

Access to the wider Baddengorm Forest complex is available directly from the public highway along the eastern boundary. Within the forest, a network of established tracks provides access to the individual woodland plots, making exploration of the surrounding landscape straightforward.
