LOCATION

Whitehead Coppice is located either side of the A66 Penrith to Keswick Road next to Threlkeld Bridge. Threlkeld village is 1 mile distant and Keswick is 4 miles. All distances are approximate.

DESCRIPTION

Situated in a simply stunning location, Whitehead Coppice sits inside the Lake District National Park and on the banks of the River Greta. Within the wood is your own private bathing beach just next to the ancient stone arches of Threlkeld bridge.

On its north side the wood abuts the well-known cycle route, The Threlkeld railway trail.

Positioned on an east and north facing slope the river and the old railway line form the woodland's lower boundary.

The wood is stocked with a mix of mainly mature ash, sycamore, beech, oak, hazel and even some elm trees. A new owner will be able to thin these trees to maintain the woodland for the future.

Access is easy through the wooden 5-bar gate shown at point A on the saleplan. A metalled footpath/track runs along the river side and connects to the cycle trail next to the old iron river bridge.

The new section of the A66 crosses the woodland as a viaduct supported by concrete pillars. This arrangement of the road maintains the woodland's privacy and reduces traffic noise to nothing more than a slight murmur.
